Glossary of Terms

Assisted Living Facility -- offers a housing alternative for older adults who may need help with dressing, bathing, eating, and toileting, but do not require the intensive medical and nursing care provided in nursing homes.

CAN (Certified Nursing Assistant) -- works closely with patients and are responsible for basic care services such as bathing, grooming, feeding, assisting nurses with medical equipment, and checking vital signs such as temperature, pulse, blood pressure, and respirations. Exact certification requirements vary by state, but most include the completion of a certificate program and the passage of a certification exam.

FMLA (Family Medical Leave Act) -- a federal law designed to help you preserve your job and benefits when you need time off from work to take care of a new child or deal with serious health situations involving your family or yourself. FMLA can help you be confident of your decisions as you balance family needs with your work schedule. You can take time off to attend to such critical life events without losing your employment and health insurance coverage.

Geriatric Care Manager -- a social worker, nurse, gerontologist, counselor, or other professional. Geriatric care management (GCM) provides assistance for you and your loved one in finding resources, making decisions, and managing stress.

Homecare -- any form of care given within the home. This can range from care provided by a home health aide, home health nurse, companion, or caregiver and includes intermittent care, respite care, and home therapies. The term homecare covers both medical and nonmedical forms of care.

Home Health Aide -- a trained professional who provides nonmedical health services. A home health aide's primary tasks include personal care and assistance with Activities of Daily Living.

Home Health Care -- health care that occurs within one's home. The term home health care and homecare are often interchanged; however, home health care refers to medical related homecare while homecare encompasses all medical and nonmedical homecare services. A home health care company provides services that include caregiver services, home health nursing, home therapists, home health aides, and more.

Hospice -- care designed to give supportive care to people in the final phase of a terminal illness, with a focus on comfort and quality of life, rather than cure. The goal is to enable patients to be comfortable and free of pain, so that they live each day as fully as possible. Aggressive methods of pain control may be used. Hospice programs generally are home-based, but they sometimes provide services away from home in freestanding facilities, in nursing homes, or within hospitals. The philosophy of hospice is to provide support for the patient's emotional, social, and spiritual needs, in addition to medical symptoms, as part of treating the whole person.

Medicaid -- a joint federal and state program that helps low-income individuals or families pay for the costs associated with long-term medical and custodial care, provided they qualify. Although largely funded by the federal government, Medicaid is run by the state where coverage may vary.

Medicare -- a federal program that helps pay for medical expenses of those aged 65 and over. Coverage varies depending on individual needs.

Nurse Practitioner -- an advanced practice nurse trained in assessment of the physical and psychosocial health/illness status of individuals, families, or groups, in a variety of settings, through health and development history taking and physical examination. Specialties include family nurse practitioner and pediatric nurse practitioner.

Nursing Home -- a private residential institution equipped to care for aged or chronically ill persons unable to look after themselves.

OFLA (Oregon Family Leave Act) -- requires employers of 25 or more employees to provide eligible workers with protected leave to care for themselves or family members in cases of death, illness, injury, childbirth and adoption. In most cases, OFLA leave also qualifies as FMLA leave. As long as leave qualifies under both the FMLA and OFLA, its use is counted against both entitlements so employees are usually not eligible for more time off under OFLA. In some cases, OFLA does provide more time off than FMLA and the additional time is then charged only against the employee's OFLA leave balance. Refer to OFLA provides job protection for time off, but does not provide employer paid health insurance while on leave without pay.

RN (Registered Nurse) -- a graduate nurse registered and licensed to practice by a State Board of Nurse Examiners or other state authority.

http://www.oregon.gov/DHS/spwpd/pages/hlth_med/healthmed.aspx#medicaid

OSIPM covers a wide range of medical benefits and services such as doctor's visits, prescription drugs and other medically necessary services and supplies. Once you are eligible for OSIPM, you may also be eligible for services such as in-home care, adult foster homes, residential care, assisted living, nursing home care and cash for special needs. The program provides medical benefits to people with disabilities, those who are legally blind, and those older than 65. Medicaid pays the long-term care costs for eligible, low-income individuals. There are three different areas for eligibility determinations

- Income (300% of SSI for an individual - $2022.00 per month)
- Resources ($2,000 in assets)
- Limitations in Activities of Daily Living

Medicare

(800)633-4227

Website: www.medicare.gov

Medicare is the federal health insurance program for people who are 65 or older, certain younger people with disabilities, and people with End-Stage Renal Disease (permanent kidney failure requiring dialysis or a transplant, sometimes called ESRD).

The different parts of Medicare help cover specific services:

Medicare Part A (Hospital Insurance): Part A covers inpatient hospital stays, care in a skilled nursing facility, hospice care, and some home health care.

Medicare Part B (Medical Insurance): Part B covers certain doctors' services, outpatient care, medical supplies, and preventive services.

Medicare Part C (Medicare Advantage Plans): A Medicare Advantage Plan is a type of Medicare health plan offered by a private company that contracts with Medicare to provide you with all your Part A and Part B benefits. Medicare Advantage Plans include Health Maintenance Organizations, Preferred Provider Organizations, Private Fee-for-Service Plans, Special Needs Plans, and Medicare Medical Savings Account Plans. If you are enrolled in a Medicare Advantage Plan, Medicare services are covered through the plan and are not paid for under Original Medicare. Most Medicare Advantage Plans offer prescription drug coverage.

Medicare Part D (prescription drug coverage): Part D adds prescription drug coverage to Original Medicare, some Medicare Cost Plans, some Medicare Private-Fee-for-Service Plans, and Medicare Medical Savings Account Plans. These plans are offered by insurance companies and other private companies approved by Medicare. Medicare Advantage Plans may also offer prescription drug coverage that follows the same rules as Medicare Prescription Drug Plans.

Website: <http://www.oregon.gov/LTCO/Pages/index.aspx>

The Office of the Long-Term Care Ombudsman is a free service available to residents, families, facility staff, and the general public. Ombudsmen respond to a wide variety of resident concerns, including problems with resident care, medications, billing, lost property, meal quality, evictions, guardianships, dignity and respect, and care plans. The program serves residents in nursing facilities, residential care facilities, assisted living facilities and adult foster care homes. Complaints are investigated and resolved by staff and a team of trained and certified volunteer ombudsmen assigned to facilities throughout the state. Beyond complaint investigation and resolution, ombudsmen strive to be the eyes and ears of residents and to advocate for improvements in their quality of life and quality of care.

Geriatric Care Managers

Geriatric care managers can help organize and manage an elderly loved one's total care needs. After conducting a needs assessment, the geriatric care manager will create a plan for the elderly person's care, including medical, legal and financial. Geriatric care managers are a good option for long distance caregivers to help provide you with assistance and support when you are caring for loved ones from a distance.

Tips for Dealing with Caregiver Stress

- ✓ Take care of yourself first: find ways to pamper yourself such as lighting candles and taking a long bath, getting a manicure, and buying fresh flowers for the house.
- ✓ Accept help: spread the responsibility and try to get as many family members involved as possible. When someone offers assistance, say yes, and have a list of simple tasks that others could easily take care of, such as picking up groceries or driving your loved one to an appointment.
- ✓ Focus on what you are able to provide: rather than incurring stress over things you can't control, focus on the things you can control and how you react to the things you can't.
- ✓ Get enough sleep: most people need more sleep than they think they do and when you get less your mood, energy, productivity, and ability to handle stress will suffer.
- ✓ Exercise: a powerful stress reliever and mood enhancer, exercise it also boosts your energy level and helps you fight fatigue.
- ✓ Eat healthy: nourish your body with fresh fruit, vegetables, whole grains, beans, lean protein, and healthy fats such as nuts and olive oil. These foods will fuel you with steady energy throughout the day.
- ✓ Get regular medical check-ups: don't skip check-ups or medical appointments. You need to be healthy in order to take good care of your family member.
- ✓ Join a support group: this is a great way to share your troubles and find people who are going through the same experiences that you are living each day.
- ✓ Make time for an activity that you enjoy: set aside a minimum of 30 minutes every day for yourself and do whatever it is that you enjoy, whether it's reading, working in the garden, knitting, or watching a sports game/event.

Tips for the Working Family Caregiver

Brown, D. E. (2012). The working family caregiver: Tips for balancing career and caregiving. San Rafael, CA: Early Bird Alert.

- ✓ Understand your company's benefits and policies. More companies offer progressive benefits to help employees caring for children and other family members. Benefits may include help finding resources, lunchtime seminars, subsidized back-up care, flextime, and counseling services. Check with your Human Resources department to learn if your company offers any benefits.
- ✓ Know that you cannot be discriminated against because of your caregiving role. The federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission has an article about your rights.
- ✓ Understand how the Family and Medical Leave Act can help you. Typically, employers with 50 or more employees must comply with FMLA.
- ✓ Communicate effectively with your boss. Explain the caregiving situation, how you plan to manage it, and ask for feedback. You may start a discussion this way: "My father is not doing well and is now living with me. I have hired help and organized my family to assist to ensure my father is okay while I am here at work. It's possible that I may encounter a crisis because my father's health is unstable. What would be the best way for me to communicate and handle any crisis?" You also may want to ask your boss for suggestions on how to communicate this situation with your co-workers.
- ✓ Ask co-workers if they have cared for an aging relative while employed with your current employer or know of others who have. Ask for suggestions on how they managed the situation.
- ✓ Know who can help (professionals, family members, friends, neighbors) and how they can help. Ask for and accept the help. A geriatric care manager can be a terrific investment to help find resources and oversee care. You can find more information with a visit to the National Association of Professional Geriatric Care Managers.
- ✓ Create a back-up plan. Ask yourself all the "What If?" questions you can think of. When developing your plan, ask for feedback from family, your friends, your support group, your caregiving coach, and a geriatric care manager. If appropriate, co-workers and management may be able to offer insights.
- ✓ Set limits with family members and those you're caring for about your availability during work hours. Perhaps you determine you can be available during your lunch hour to field calls or for a few minutes during the afternoon. (Of course, during a crisis—and you may have to define "crisis," as others' definitions may differ from yours—i.e., you are always available.)
- ✓ Remember the Three Be's of Caregiving (Be Prepared, Be Honest, Be Well). And, consider writing a Caregiving Mission Statement.
- ✓ Keep two journals—one for your feelings and one about the needs, medications, treatments, likes/dislikes, and care tips. You will come to value both as treasures.
- ✓ Forgive yourself for any bad days; give yourself a fresh start the next day. In addition, think ahead about five years. When you look back to now, what actions and decisions will make you proud?
